Confidentiality Policy

Information, Advice and Support Kent (IASK) offers a confidential service to service users and in doing so has responsibilities under Common Law and the Data Protection Act including General Data Protection Regulations. Any information about a service user, including whether or not they have been in contact with IASK must not be shared outside the IASK Service unless:

- the parent*, child or young person gives permission for the information to be shared, or
- there are strong public interest concerns, i.e. safeguarding

The Service complies with the Freedom of Information Act and related Kent County Council (KCC) policies.

As a Service we have no access to files held elsewhere in KCC. Information held by IASK is confidential; it is held separately and can only be accessed by IASK staff. The Service has a shared computer area which only members of the team are allowed to access via their unique log-in and password. The database containing caller records is password protected and only those members of staff with a need to access it are provided with the appropriate password.

Service Users are made aware of how, and why, we keep information when they contact us. When we ask them for their personal details, they are told that they do not have to give those details. These calls are recorded as anonymous. Service Users are made aware of IASK's confidentiality policy when they contact the Service. No information is retained without service user's permission.

Parents may contact the service independently of each other. Staff will treat both parties as separate enquiries unless knowledge of previous contact with the service is clearly stated. Enquiries from young people and their parents who contact the service independently will be treated as separate enquires.

We aim to ensure that children, young people and their parents access support and information in complete confidence. All staff and volunteers understand and abide by this policy and the Children and Young People's Confidentiality Policy and Procedures.

Exceptions to Confidentiality

At times it might be helpful to pass on information about cases, however, this will only be done with the service users consent and will only be done in order to help the parent, child or young person. When we receive consent to disclose information about a service user this will always be documented on the database.

The only exception to confidentiality is in regard to information which leads us to believe a child/young person is at risk of significant harm. We have a legal obligation to pass on concerns regarding Safeguarding to the relevant Social Service professionals.

Safeguarding concerns are always discussed internally with a member of the Senior Management Team before being discussed externally. The Service complies with local Safeguarding Procedures.

At times, for training purposes or supervision, cases may be informally discussed or used as case studies. Where this takes place, IASK will ensure that any identifying details will be removed to ensure that the right to confidentiality is protected.
